BATTLE ON 100-MI. FRONT

NEW YORK, June 6 (INS)—The Berlin radio has admitted that bridgeheads between Le Havre and Boulogne are now firmly in Allied hands. The Berlin radio added that the Allies have landed heavy armament on the beachheads, NBC added. The DNB agency reported this afternoon that "at one point" the Allied troops driving onto the beaches of France "have penetrated several miles to the south."

Allied troops have landed on the channel islands of Guernsey and Jersey, the German agency, Transocean, said.

Invasion Armies Storm France on 100-Mi. Front

INVASION—Under a thundering umbrella of air power, Allied forces embarking from England are today smashing against the sandy beaches of the French coast all the way from the Brittany port of Cherbourg, north to Boulogne as the long awaited invasion of Hitler's Europe roars into high speed.

By WES GALLAGHER

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 6 (AP)—Allied troops landed on the Normandy coast of France in tremendous strength by cloudy daylight today and stormed several miles inland with tanks and infantry in the grand assault whicr Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower called a crusade in which "we will accept nothing less than full victory."

German broadcasts said the Allies penetrated several kilometers between Caen and Isigny, which are 35 miles apart and respectively nine and two miles from the sea.

German opposition apparently was less effective than expected, although fierce in many respects, and the Germans said they were bringing reinforcements continuously up to the coast, where "a battle for life or death is in progress."

BULLETINS

NAPLES (INS)—In a special invasion extra, the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes reported today that 30,000 Allied paratroopers have landed in France to spearhead the massive operations now under way there.

STOCKHOLM (INS)—More than 100 ships participated in the Allied landing at Arromanche, France, the Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet reported from Berlin today. New Allied landing ships are constantly nearing the French coast, the paper said, while parachutists are landing from 10 to 12 miles inland.

4000 Ships Carry Invaders

The seaborne troops, led by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, surged across the channel from England by 4000 regular ships and additional thousands of smaller craft.

They were preceded by massed flights of parachute and glider forces who landed inland during the dark.

Eleven thousand planes supported the attack.

The German radio said the landings were made from Cherbourg to Le Havre—a strip of coast roughly 100 miles long—and later said additional landings were being made "west of Cherbourg," indicating that the Allies intended to seize the Normandy peninsula with its ports and airdromes as the first base of their campaign to destroy the power of Nazi Germany.

The initial landings were made from 6 to 8:25 a. m. British time (midnight to 2:25 a. m., Boston time) the Germans said subsequent landings were made on the English channel isles of Jersey and Guernsey and that invasion at new points on the continent was expected hourly.

Aside from confirming that Normandy was the general area of the assault, Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force was silent concerning the location for tactical reasons.

Reds Mass Own Invasion

From Moscow came word that the Russian army was massing in preparation for another great attack from the east as its part in defeating Germany.

All reports from the beachhead, meager though they were in specific detail, agreed that the Allies had made good the great gamble of amphibious landing against possibly the strongest fortified section of coast in the world.

Reconnaissance pilots said Allied troops had secured the beaches and were slashing inland, some of them actually runnin gin a swift advance. The unofficial word at headquarters confirmed this, while the Vichy radio admitted the Allied drive inland was going right ahead.

More than 640 naval guns, ranging from 4 to 16-inch, hurled many tons of shells accurately into the coastal fortifications which the Germans had spent four years preparing against this day.

Allied planes preceded the landings wit ha steady 96-hour bombardment which reached its pinnacle in the hour before the troops hit the beaches.

The air attack was thrust home through cloud banks 5000 feet high.

Hitler Reported on Way There

The absence of German aerial opposition was remarked by nearly all returning fliers and correspondents. The Germans are known to have about 1750 fighters and 500 bombers available fo rthe Western Front, but it was supposed that they had chosen not to risk them in an all-out first-day battle.

German naval opposition was confined to destroyers and motor torpedo boats which headquarters said succinctly were being "dealt with." The Germans, as expected, blared on their radios all sorts of claims of vast destruction done Allied fleets and forces, but with no confirmation.

In one defiant gesture, some of the German cross-channel guns opened a sporadic fire on Dover during the afternoon.

Unconfirmed reports said Hitler was rushing to France to try his intuition against the Allied operation. Presumably Field Marshals Karl Gerd von Rundstedt and Erwin Rommel were directing the defences from their headquarters in France.

German accounts through Sweden admitted that steady streams of Allied troops were continuing to land, particularly in the vicinity of Arromanches, about midway between Le Havre and Barfleur, and that tanks were ashore at

German Story Of Big Battle

By The Associated Press

The German news agency DNB at 10 a. m. today gave this version of the Allied invasion:

An Anglo-American large scale attack against the Seine Bay and Normandy began early in the morning of June 6 with the dropping of major airborne formations between the estuaries of the Seine and Orne, in the area of Isigny, Caen and near Barfleur at the northeastern tip of the peninsula of Normandy.

While the parachutists dropped between the Seine and Orne, as well as strong groups of parachutists dropped near Barfleur, weer annihilated, fighting in the area of Isigny and Caen is in progress still.

About two hours after the first parachutists' landing, large-scale amphibious operations commenced on a wide front between Le Havre and Cherbourg, with the focal points again directed against the river's estuaries.

ADMIT ALLIED GAINS

Another focal point developed at dawn today in the district between Caen and Isigny, where the attacking Anglo-American forces were favored by terrain conditions. They succeeded at two places in reaching the coast, and in advancing with their tanks several kilometers southward.

According to the first reports received so far, eight of 35 enemy tanks already have been destroyed.

Further very strong disembarkments took place at the small coastal place at St. Vaast la Hougue, where a violent artillery duel developed between German coastal batteries and naval forces of the Allied landing fleet. As already reported, one cruiser and one major landing vessel heavily laden with troops and heavy arms were sunk by direct hits.

Grim fighting is taking place in the district of the estuary of the Orne and Vire.

Protected by numerous light naval forces and artificial fog, landing boats of various types entered the river estuaries, attempting to carry out major scale landing operations in the rear of the Atlantic wall.

STRONG AIR SUPPORT

North of Caen a group from a landing vessel was completely annihilated by the surprise attack of a German reserve formation, in which the invaders suffered heavy casualties and considerable losses in material.

Regarding the fighting on the Vire estuary no details are available so far.

The naval and airborne operations were supported by strong fighter formations. How many Allied troops have been employed in the amphibious operations cannot be said so far.

German military circles assume that invasion operations will be extended to a wider coastal strip before long.

In the bay of St. Malo attempted major attacks against the atlantic wall are expected. An attack against this district will be the more alluring to the Allies since in the bay of St. Malo are well-known channel islands of Guernsey, Jersey, and Sark, which up to June, 1940, represented British claims to the western French coast.

Invasion Bulletins

LONDON (INS)—Correspondent James Willard, in a pool broadcast from supreme headquarters on behalf of the Allied radio, reported today that German tanks "are moving up the roads toward the beachhead" in France.

LONDON (INS)—The admiralty announced today that "further large areas" of the Bay of Biscay and the English channel approaches now are mined and dangerous to shipping entering without permission.

NEW YORK (INS)—The Russian people were given news of the Allied invasion of France in a Moscow radio broadcast at 6:45 a. m. today.

LONDON (INS)—The German Air Force late today still had failed to put up any serious opposition to Allied fliers supporting invasion operations on the coast of France, returning pilots reported.

STOCKHOLM (INS)—The skies above France 'a're darkened by an enormous swarm of Allied planes coming in continuous waves," the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen reported.

NEW YORK (INS)—Allied troops "have set up beachheads at at least two points, and Allied formations are moving inland," the British radio said today in a broadcast heard by CBS.

LONDON (AP)—The Paris radio said today the battle in the Cotentin (Normandy) peninsula seems to be gaining depth."

Eyewitness' Stories of Big Battles

Here are some of the first eyewitness stories to come from the scene of the Allied invasion of Europe. They tell of great battles raging on the sea and in the air, of the tremendous plane armada hurled at the Germans, of the dropping of the countless thousands of paratroopers along the invasion coast and of aerial views of the landings of troops and implements of war.

Gladwin Hill, Associated Press correspondent at a Marauder base in England, reported "From the cockpit of one of many hundreds of planes which supported the Allied landing in northern France early this morning I watched a battle royal rage on the sea and in the air.

"The fields along the French coast were dotted with parachutes of Allied airborne forces who had landed a few minutes before, and interspersed among the parachutes were aircraft—probably gliders.

"The first signs of battle were flashed from the Channel below, which through the mist and a Naval smoke screen gradually became distinguishable as gun detonations on warships shelling the coast.

ZEBRA STRIPES ON CRAFT

"The Channel wasn't 'jammed with shipping' as might have been expected. The Channel is a big place, but on every hand there were forces of ships either battering the coast line or bringing up forces to take advantage of breaches.

"The aircraft dotting the fields bore the distinctive Allied invasion black and white zebra stripe, which was hurriedly slapped on the aircraft late yesterday.

(A broadcast from supreme headquarters said the black and white identifying stripes on the planes were one step toward preventing confusion and repetition of such mistakes as Allied gunners firing on friendly planes, as happened in Sicily.)

"United Nations convoys are bringing up additional reinforcements to support this initial invasion drive, and thousands of Allied planes are hammering the coast.

FIRST PARATROOPS

Wright Bryan, NBC correspondent with the airborne troops, described the dropping of the first paratroopers on occupied Europe in a broadcast described by the network as the first on-the-scene radio report of the Allied invasion.

He told of his plane, the "Snootie," with many others streaming behind, dropping the paratroopers. He described the return trip over the channel and said his plane passed countless hundreds of others making their way toward Europe.

He said he also saw many ships

Hit Target!

A LIBERATOR BOMBER STATION SOMEWHERE IN BRITAIN, June 6 (INS)—Brig. Gen. Walter R. Peck of Lima, O., commander of the combat wing, told his men just before the hop-off:

"The world's biggest invasion fleet will be only 400 yards off shore when you are over the target, so for Pete's sake smack the target!

"You are the spearhead of invasion. The lives of thousands upon thousands depend on you."

His words were greeted by gasps and whistles.

"Don't bomb short," warned Base Commander Arthur J. Pierce of Montague, Mass.

Reporter on LCT Tells How Cool Yanks Set Sail

By CLARK LEE

WITH U. S. INVASION FORCES AT ENGLISH CHANNEL, June 6 (INS)—Allied troops boarded invasion boats for the smash into Hitler Europe today filled with confidence and eager to get on with the job ahead.

There was no bravado, no noticeable tension and no visible elation.

These were just American youngsters who wanted to get the job over with as quickly as possible.

They knew where they were going and why. After months of rigorous training they felt as ready as they would ever be.

One shavetail told me: "I feel the first step on beach will be my first step home.

"For three years each step I have taken has been away from home. Now is the time to get started back."

I am accompanying the American assault force which was chosen to make the first breach in one sector of the steel and concrete wall Hitler has thrown around his enslaved countries.

GENERALS' WORDS

Men standing on the decks of our LCT (landing craft, tanks), listened in close attention as their commanding officer read a letter from Gen. Eisenhower telling them the hopes and prayers of liberty-loving people everywhere are marching with them to victory.

They appeared absorbed as they heard other messages from Gens. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery and Omar Nelson Bradley. All three promised victory "with God's help."

The commanding officer of headquarters company troops of this LST read the messages rapidly, but expressively, and then added:

"There's not much need for me to say anything. In the event of air attacks, the only firing will be done by the Navy and our 50-calibres. It's unlikely the big bombers will go after us because we're a small target.

"We may get strafed. If so, get under your vehicles as quick as you can. Lie there and pray to God.

"There's no need to say anything more. This is the McCoy. Every one of you has proved himself 100 times over. We count on you to do your stuff."

READY TO LAST DETAIL

The men smiled and clapped briefly, a little self-consciously, then turned away. A few minutes later they scattered into small groups in the narrow passages between vehicles and some fell asleep atop the jeeps. Some listened to American jazz from a radio car.

At the rattle of mess-kits, the GI's perked up noticeably. Chow was ready for us at a certain time and we were there to get it at a certain time. We ate quickly to make way for others behind.

This was just one sample of the incredibly detailed preparations. All over England's coastal area this vast movement of hundreds of thousands of men was going on.

From the time they were briefed and told they were attacking the Continent, the men were confined to marshalling areas, forbidden to speak to troops passing by or to static troops remaining behind.

This ban continued in effect until they were aboard their ships.

The harbor was chock-a-block with shipping, filled with craft of all sizes.

Then we went into the steel-hulled vessels whose decks held orderly rows of trucks, jeeps and guns.

As we boarded the craft an American brigadier-general came down to watch the loading and say a last few words of encouragement to the troops. Wearing a

Eisenhower's Invasion Order

LONDON, June 6 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower issued the following order of the day to his invasion troops today:

"Soldiers, sailors and airmen of the Allied Expeditionary Force:

"You are about to embark on a great crusade. The eyes of the world are upon you and the hopes and prayers of all liberty loving peoples go with you.

"In company with our brave Allies and brothers in arms on other fronts, you will bring about the destruction of the German war machine, elimination of Nazi tyranny over the oppressed peoples of Europe, and security for ourselves in a free world.

"Your task will not be an easy one. Your enemy is well trained, well equipped and battle hardened. He will fight savagely. But in this year of 1944 much has happened since the Nazi triumphs of 1940 and 1941.

"The United Nations have inflicted upon the Germans great defeats in open battle, man to man. Our air offensive has seriously reduced their strength in the air and their capacity to wage war on the ground, our home fronts have given us overwhelming superiority in weapons and munitions of war, and have placed at our disposal great reserves of trained fighting men.

"The tide has turned, and free men of the world are marching together to victory.

"I have full confidence in your courage, devotion to duty and skill in battle. We will accept nothing less than full victory. Good luck, and let us all beseech the blessing of Almighty God upon this great and noble undertaking."

All N. E. Faiths Join in Prayer

Prayers and hope spoken and unspoken, today forged the mightiest bond ever to hold New Englanders of all creeds and denominations, and all racial origins, in a realization of their Americanism.

Their country's hour of destiny had struck.

The tension of waiting for the invasion was over. American soldiers were hurling their might against fortress Europe. This was it. The big First Team had been sent into action.

On the streets of Boston, at 7:38 a. m., men and women on their way to work heard the moving strains of the "Star Spangled Banner" resound from 22 amplifiers of the Civilian Defense air raid system.

The grand old anthem sent a surge of emotion through the breasts of these early workers. The streets soon would be filled with big commuter crowds pouring from the North and South Stations and with the swelled subway throngs, but now the thoroughfares were still fairly quiet and free of traffic.

". . . By the dawn's early light" . . . It came clear and strong, echoing through the narrow streets. People knew why it came. Telephone, radio, word of mouth had reached them before this.

CHURCH BELLS RING

Throughout the state, church bells were ringing—had been ringing since 6 a. m., in some cases. Fire sirens and whistles shrieked the word in tiny communities. Country telephone operators spoke it into their mouthpieces.

War plant whistles rent the air. The whistle cords of locomotives pulling on suburban trains headed for Boston were held down hard.

As the strains of the national anthem in Boston died away, Mayor Tobin called the people to prayer through the Civilian Defense amplifier system. He spoke at fire headquarters and read to his listeners in the streets from Associated Press and International News Service dispatches from the Record-American.

"The churches of the city are open, and it is my wish the people of Boston visit them and pray for the success of our boys in this, the most important invasion in the world's history," he said.

HARD TIMES AHEAD

"Hard times are ahead for these boys," he added. "Today is no day for celebration. It is a day for prayer and harder work than ever before. This is the least we owe them."

At Sacred Heart Church, Newton Center, the Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, administrator of the archdiocese, celebrated mass at 8 o'clock.

Then he and hiscurates called the children from Sacred Heart Parochial School and formed a processional to the shrine of the Blessed Virgin, where they offered prayer.

Church after church of the Protestant denominations was opened to receive parishioners who came to utter their prayers in accord with their Catholic brothers.

Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill of the Episcopal diocese ordered all churches of his New England jurisdiction open the day long.

Bishop Cushing announced novenas would be offere in behalf of the Feast of the Sacred Heart, beginning Friday. They will beseech a quick victory and quick peace. That day also will serve for the opening of a nine-day crusade of prayer in all churches of the archdiocese.

Invasion memorial services were planned for synagogues, one of the first of which will be tonight at Temple Emmanuel, Newton, with Dr. Kalman Friedman officiating.

Chaplains of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths held services in the Navy Yard chapel, with war workers joining naval personnel in devout appeals for victory.

CANCEL RACE PROGRAM

There and at Army installations everywhere, the unity of thought, hope and prayer was bringing men and women of dissimilar creeds closer together perhaps than ever before in their day.

It was no day for indulging in horse racing or horse betting. With that realization the management of Suffolk Downs cancelled its afternoon program. Similar action was taken by other large tracks elsewhere.

GEN. BERNARD MONTGOMERY
Heads Land Assault

It was a day for observance by children as well as adults. Supt. Arthur L. Gould of the Boston school department ordered all principals to hold assemblies of students to hear the Scriptures read and to join in one minute of silent prayer at 11 a. m., the epochal hour of armistice in the last World War.

The school committee was to meet later to decide whether classes should be dismissed earlier than usual.

Prayers were sent heavenward by children in the public and parochial schools of Cambridge, under the leadership of lay teachers and nuns. Mayor John H. Corcoran annaunced there would be daily prayer in the public schools throughout the invasion period.

Bells Rouse Scions of '76

In Lexington, where embattled farmers and British redcoats once hurled musket fire at each other, the populace arose early and joined in prayer for American and British soldiers alike.

The townspeople learned D-Day is here when the bells of the three Protestant churches began to toll rapidly soon after 4 a. m. Catholic worshippers wended their way to their always open churches to pray for the fighting men. At noon, union services were held in the First Parish Unitarian Church.

All the churches in historic Concord likewise were opened for those who would kneel and ask Divine protection for those in the mighty invasion.

A prayer service was held in St. John's Episcopal Church, Arlington, at 10 a. m.

So it was throughout Greater Boston, the State and New England, as well as over the entire nation.

In Bedford, the junior high school current events class was allowed to put away all else and listen to the continuous radio bulletins from London, Washington and elsewhere, messages telling of the biggest "current event" in the history of the world during the time of these children.

All-day services were held in the Salvation Army's houses of worship throughout New England, by order of Col. Richard F. Streeton, New England director. He estimated the aggregate attendance would be 300,000.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in the Back Bay, was opened for meditation and prayer.

In the churches, in the synagogues, in places of public meeting, in the homes, and even in the streets, where small groups paused to uncover during the straims of the national anthem, words of supplication went aloft.

There was rejoicing because at last the great Allied military strength, so long poised on England's shores for the massed blow, had been unleashed.

Yet it was a rejoicing tempered by a realization that thousands of American will die, and the fate of all mankind will be influenced for better or worse in this historic struggle.

Telephone Girls Have Double Job

The telephone company today estimated it would handle more than 3,000,000 local phone calls by nightfall, double the usual daily traffic, as D-Day calls poured over the lines.

Officials were ready for the double traffic, however, and had begun preparations before most folk were out of bed, calling in all girl operators due at 7 a. m. at 5, and bringing the 8 a. m. shift of girls in at 7, in addition to calling in hundreds of extra operators.

Dial phone experts were called in to stand by the hot lines in those exchanges, and by 9 o'clock double the ordinary number of calls were being made locally though the volume of long distance calls had not greatly increased.

F.D. Prayer on Radio at 10 P.M.

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP)—Closeted in his bedroom, President Roosevelt spent the early morning hours of the invasion writing a prayer for victory for the Allied Forces of Liberation.

The Chief Executive, who received reports of the invasion through its early phases, will go on the air at 10 o'clock tonight (EWT), with the hope that the nation will join him in the prayer he wrote.

Presidential Secretary Early said the President went to his bedroom early last evening and began working on the prayer shortly after he delivered a nation-wide radio broadcast on the fall of Rome.

Working behind blackout curtains which darkened the White House to nighttime passersby, the Chief Executive received steady invasion reports—complete and in detail—from 11:30 p. m. on into the actual hours of the assault against the coast of France, Early said.

"He knew when the first barges started across the channel and he knew when they landed," Early said. "He knew of other operations in just as great detail."

The reports came into the White House by telephone from the Army's nerve center, the near-by Pentagon building.

"The President has known for some time what the world now knows about the invasion," Early said.

The text of the prayer Mr. Roosevelt wrote will be released for publication later in the day, Early added.

Early said Mr. Roosevelt managed to get several hours sleep, but was up early.

Churchill Warns:

Anzio Showed Landing Costly

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

LONDON, June 6 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told a cheering House of Commons today the Allied liberating assault upon Hitler's European stronghold was "proceeding according to plan—and what a plan!"

In tones of confidence, he reported the Allied forces had been transported across the Channel to the shores of France by "an immense armada" of 4000 ships with several thousand smaller craft—"probably the greatest fleet ever assembled."

Mass air-borne landings also have been successfully effected behind the enemy's lines, he said.

There was grim news as well as good in Churchill's address.

In discussing the battle of the Anzio beachhead in Italy, which was established last January and held against heavy German counterattacks, he said the Allies lost about 20,000 men, and the Germans 25,000.

COSTLY FOR NAZIS

But the Anzio landing had in the end borne good fruit by forcing Hitler to send south of Rome eight or nine divisions "which he might well have needed elsewhere," he added.

"There are already hopes that actual tactical surprise has been attained," he continued, "and we hope to furnish the enemy with a succession of surprises, during the course of the fighting.

"The battle which is now beginning will grow constantly in scale and in intensity for many weeks to come and I shall not attempt to speculate upon its course.

"The landings on the beaches are proceeding at various points at the present time," Churchill said. "The fire of shore batteries has been largely quelled . . . Obstacles which were constructed in the sea have not proved so difficult as was apprehended."

The Prime Minister said the American-British Allies are sustained by about 11,000 first line aircraft, which can be drawn upon as needed.

"So far," he said, "the commanders who are engaged report that everything is proceeding according to plan."

Churchill said the vast operation was "undoubtedly the most complicated and difficult which has ever occurred."

To cheers by Parliament members, Churchill took "formal cognizance of the liberation of Rome," and added:

"American and other forces of the Fifth Army broke through the enemy's last lines and entered Rome, where Allied troops have been received with joy by the population.

"This entry and liberation of Rome means that we shall have power to defend it from hostile air attacks and deliver it from the famine with which is was threatened."

PRAISES GENERALS

Britain's war leader paid high intribute to both Gen. Alexander and Gen. Clark in Italy and said:

"Complete unity prevails throughout the Allied armies . . . There is complete confidence in the supreme commander, Gen. Eisenhower, and his lieutenants and also in the commander of the Expeditionary Force, Gen. Montgomery.

In discussing the Italian campaign, where he said the Allied forces "with the Americans in the van are driving ahead northwards in relentless pursuit of the enemy," Churchill said it was hoped that the 20,000 prisoners already taken would be followed by further captures in the near future.

Of the new European operations, Churchill said "this great new front will be pursued with the utmost resolution, both by the commanders and the United States and British governments whom they serve."

Trial of Noxon Is Halted For Invasion Day Prayer

By PAULINE WARREN

PITTSFIELD, June 6—The trial of John Noxon corporation attorney, accused of having electrocuted his mongoloid-type infant, was halted this morning by Judge Pinanski who made the following announcement as soon as court convened at 10 o'clock:

"After conference with the district attorney and attorneys for the defendant, and with their counsel, I have concluded that it is not only fitting and proper, but imperative that we should pause in the performance of our public duty to pray to Almighty God to bless and watch over the men and women of our armed forces who are engaged in the battle for our cause, and to pray for their safety and the success of our cause.

"I have asked the clergyman, Rev. Floyd L. Roberts, who assisted in the opening of this session of court to return to us today and to pray upon this solemn occasion. I understand that services will be held in all churches at 12:15 p. m. today, and we shall suspend at noon to give all of you the opportunity to attend such a service, and will resume our work at 2 p. m."

SPECIAL PRAYER

The Rev. Mr. Roberts then gave a special invasion prayer written by the Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker to be used in all Congregational churches in this section:

"Almighty and Most Merciful God . . . We beseech Thee . . . in this dark hour of conflict and danger. May it please Thee this day to draw to Thyself the hearts of those who struggle and endure to the uttermost. Have mercy on them.

"Forgive us and cleanse us, as those who strive against us, that we may be fit instruments of Thy purposes.

"Unto Thy most gracious keeping we commend our loved ones and ourselves."

The jurors voted to attend the First Congregational Church, the oldest church in the Berkshires at 12:15 p. m. today where the Rev. John Gratton will conduct special invasion services.

Dr. George P. Hunt, Pittsfield pediatrician, then resumed the stand and once more, as at the first trial which ended in a mistrial, told of his care of the Noxon baby from birth. Once again he reiterated his opinion the child's muscles were too flaccid to be able to move normally.

Dist.-Atty. Alberti asked the doctor what tests had been made on the baby on Sept. 22, just a few hours before the baby died.

Dr. Hunt related how Mrs. Noxon had brought the baby to his office at 3:30 for whooping cough serum inoculation and a Schick test.

The needle used in the Schick test which figures prominently in the case was entered in evidence and admitted as Exhibit No. 15. Dr. Hunt identified it as the particular needle among the many he uses for these tests by its dark color which was caused, he says, by its having been burned some months before he used it on the Noxon child.

TELETYPE OPERATOR JOAN ELLIS IN LONDON

TELETYPE MESSAGE SENT BY JOAN ELLIS

HAND OF PROPHECY—When Associated Press Teletype Operator Joan Ellis sent out her practice report of Allied landings in France—"Flash—Eisenhower's headquarters announce Allied landings in France"—the hand of prophecy was upon her, for her identical words heralded the event last night. Today, her heart was lifted by the quick moving events. Too, she prepared to return to her work in the Associated Press London office.

Joan Ellis' First Flash Is News Now

The invasion flash that upset the world last Saturday night came true today—just as little Joan Ellis wrote it.

"Flash—Eisenhower's headquarters announces Allied landings France."

That was what the 22-year-old London girl punched out on teleprinter code at 4:39 p. m. Saturday—just practicing on the machine.

That was the message mistakenly fed into a transmitter by Associated Press, electrically decoded immediately in New York and broadcast by the Associated Press throughout the western hemisphere.

Here you see the first picture of Joan and the reproduction of her message as she punched it out on the teleprinter tape.

She was just about 60 hours early with it—that was the only trouble—and so became a prophet without honor in any country and a sick girl, sent to bed as her name was broadcast around the world as being responsible for a colossal blunder.

But she felt a little better today. Her practice flash had come true and a lot of folks who were very angry with her began to take a kindlier attitude toward her mistake.

FORT DEVENS, June 6 (AP)—German prisoners at this Army stockade received first news of the invasion from kitchen police. Later radios in their stockade were blaring the news. Their reactions could not be disclosed under international agreement, the Army said.

Situation Well in Hand, Marines to Wed Tonight

Marine Romance Aided by American

When a United States Marine makes up his mind to get married, anything can happen.

BUT, when two Marines decide to get married to each other, then things do happen.

Such was the case of Marine Pfc. William H. McLean, Jr., 28, Guadalcanal veteran, and his bride-to-be, Marine Corp. Arline V. MacKenzie, 23, of Camp Lejeune, N. C. McLean, now stationed at the U. S. Naval Frontier Base at East Boston, made up his mind to marry the girl he dreamed about through those long hours during the Battle of Guadalcanal, when and if she could get back here on a leave. Corp. MacKenzie wangled her furlough all right, and Boston was literally turned upside-down in the interim.

ASSISTANCE APLENTY

Obtaining a three-day leave, McLean had to find some way to waive the five-day marriage law here in Massachusetts, and did.

Through the co-operation of the Boston American, a fellow Marine friend, two doctors, a judge and a clerk at the Marriage License Bureau, the needed waiver was granted after a three-and-a-half hour whirlwind tour of the city.

Pfc. McLean, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. McLean, Sr., of Whitemore rd., Newton, and Corp. MacKenzie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. MacKenzie of Columbia rd., Dorchester, will be married tonight at St. Paul's Church, Lingarde st., Dorchester, by the Rev. Percival Quill, at a 7 o'clock ceremony.

HONEYMOON? YES

Miss Mary MacCool of Gilbert st., Watertown, will be maid of honor, Marine Pfc John P. Murphy of Broad pl., Lynn, will be best man.

A reception will be held at the bride's home following the wedding.

Honeymoon?

Well as these two Marines put it:

"It'll be short, but oh, so sweet."

Frost, Filene's President, Dies

Edward J. Frost, president of William Filene's Company, died today at New England Baptist Hospital after a prolonged illness. He was in his 72nd year.

Before coming in 1906 to Filene's, where he served as controller, director, assistant treasurer, treasurer, vice-president and president, Mr. Frost was associated with Western Electric Company as credit manager and traffic manager.

His business affiliations were varied and numerous. Besides being a director of Filene's and the R. H. White Co., he was a director of Bloomingdale Bros., Inc., New York city; Abraham & Straus, Brooklyn; F. and R. Lazarus & Co., Columbus, and the Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., Boston. He had been a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston since 1933.

He was also treasurer and director of Federated Dept. Stores, Inc., of New York, and treasurer of the Associated Merchandising Corp. and Retail Research Ass'n of New York. He was a trustee of the Copenhagen Real Estate Trust and the F. N. Day estate.

In addition to his numerous business activities, Mr. Frost had many civic affiliations. He was a trustee and member of the Corporation of Northeastern University, member of the Corporation of Simmons College, trustee of Lasell Junior College, trustee of the YD Club of Boston and trustee of Andover-Newton Theological School.

He was vice-president and director of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, director of the Boston Municipal Research Bureau, director of the Newton Community Chest, chairman of trustees of the Newton Y. M. C. A., director of the Greater Boston United War Fund, and trustee of Newton Hospital.

Capt. Bunker New Head of Ancients

The oldest military organization in the New World, the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co., today had Ichabod Bunker of Boston as its company captain, following its traditional drum-head election.

Capt. Bunker succeeds Frank G. Volpe, retiring commander. John C. Brink of Newton was elected first lieutenant, with Harvey B. Leggee of Sharon as second lieutenant.

Ichabod Bunker

The election, held on Boston Common with the members of the company tossing their ballots on the big drum which had boomed out the march tempo of their parade, was the highlight of the day of celebration of the anniversary.

The splendor and glitter of the dress uniforms of the Ancients were missing as the company, in war-time decorum, paraded in service uniforms of blue and white, with many of the members wearing the uniforms of regular branches of the armed forces in which they are serving.

The visiting Governors Foot Guards of Connecticut, which paraded with the Ancients, however, added color to the occasion as they wore their blue and buff replicas of Revolutionary Army uniforms. The guards are the second oldest company in America.

The parade formed according to ancient custom at Faneuil Hall, and its route was through downtown Boston to the Common. Two bands furnished music.

The company breakfasted at the Copley-Plaza and prior to the election attended divine services at the New Old South Church and visited the Old Granary burying ground. They wound up the celebration at the Copley-Plaza with a banquet at which Gov. Saltonstall, Mayor Tobin and Adm. Robert Theobald, commandant of the First Naval District, were speakers. Six wounded World War II veterans were guests of honor.

Woman Injured In 20-Foot Fall

Losing her balance while washing a second floor window in her home, Mrs. Margaret Bernier, 43, of Elm st., Cambridge, tumbled 20 feet to the ground today, suffering severe scalp lacerations and questionable fractures of the shoulders and ribs. Her name was placed on the danger list at Cambridge City Hospital.

Billy Will Dry His Tears When Smiling Dog Returns

When his very best friend has disappeared, there isn't very much a fellow has to live for.

Today was the most miserable day in the life of 12-year-old William Wood of Dillingham st., Dorchester, because the dog that had been like a brother to him for five years has gone.

"Duke's a Boston bull. He hasn't got a collar, so I'll tell you about him, in case anyone sees him. He's got a sad face, but when he grins it goes all over his face. When I do my homework I sit on the front of the chair so he'll have room to sit behind me.

"He's never been out of the yard for more than 10 minutes. He's kind of homely, but he's my friend and home's a sad place without 'Duke.' He's black and white and if anyone stole him because they liked him too, I won't punish anyone, but please just bring him back to me," said William.

His face streaming with tears, William spent the day gazing into the creek, scouting the shore by Malibu, calling to Duke along the streets of Dorchester. Chums from the 6th grade at John L. Motley School have organized patrols to search for the dog.

"I've walked up and down the tracks, too. I don't think he's dead, and I think someone took him," William said.

Witnesses Sought In Hearing on Kelly

State police were ordered to round up defaulting witnesses today as hearing continued before the State Ballot Law Commission in the protest against the nomination papers of former Lieut.-Gov. Francis E. Kelly, candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney-general.

At least seven persons who allegedly were served summonses failed to appear, and Joseph A. Conway, chairman of the commission, decreed warrants will be issued unless they appear at once.

The hearings came on petition of Francis D. Harrigan of Dorchester, also a candidate, who charges fraud and other irregularities in Kelly's nomination papers. A third candidate for the office is John H. Backus of New Bedford, who also filed a protest.

WOMEN TESTIFY

An early feature of the hearing was the testimony of 14 witnesses, most of them women, who said they had not signed the Kelly papers. Several said they would have, had they been asked.

The papers contain a total of 974 signatures, and to have them declared invalid the petitioners are required to prove 475 are bogus.

Backus has asked a New Bedford hearing on his charge that 275 signatures obtained for the Kelly papers in that city are fraudulent.

Kelly asked that the protest be dismissed on the grounds it was erroniously brought against "Frances E. Kelley" and the commission is expected to rule on this matter. Members said that an amended protest containing Kelly's name correctly spelled had been filed.

DISPUTE ON SUMMONS

An argument occurred over a summons which, according to the return of a constable, had been served "in hand" on one Andrew Collins of 48 Juliet st., Dorchester.

Chairman Conway told the attorneys that a Mrs. Collins telephoned him "and told me that her husband had been dead six years and asked what she would do."

To this Kelly said: "You mean a woman who SAID she was Mrs. Collins called you up and said that; I'd like to know what is going on here—the constable's return reports he served the summons in hand."

In an aside, Backus said "Kelly can't get that vote," to which Kelly replied, "John, John, John, you're getting old."

It then appeared that another Mrs. Collins of Dorchester had called Conway and told him that her son had been overseas for two years, whereupon Backus said:

"If it appears that the name of a soldier who has been overseas for two years is signed to one of these nomination papers, we should get to the bottom of it by turning the matter over to Atty.-Gen. Bushnell for investigation."

Hingham Pupils Again Fight Fire

Hingham High School boys were called from their classes today for the second time this week to help Hingham and Hull fire departments conquer an incendiary woodland fire set in four places off Whiting st., Hingham.

The fires were set about 200 feet off the road and at distances of 200 feet apart.

The Hingham Ammunition depot and the town tree wardens with spraying equipment helped the boys and regular fire departments in fighting the blaze. Two fires were set Monday, in the same area, near the Accord Pond, town water supply.

Business Gives 1000 Tons Paper

Clean-up of Boston business offices and industrial plants have netted more than 1000 tons of high-grade paper for the salvage drive, it was announced today by George C. Wiswell, chairman of salvage committee of the Boston Advertising Club, sponsors of the campaign.

"Returns from many large concerns still are rolling in," Wiswell said, in announcing that the proceeds from the sale will be turned over to the Red Cross on June 12.

Meanwhile, it was announced the next house to house collection of scrap paper in Boston will begin during the week of June 19.

George G. Hoyland, director of the Boston Salvage Committee, announced that May collections had slightly relieved shortages of paper stock needed by nearby mills, but warned that there can be no slackening off in contributions by householders.

"During the June collection we will visit every home and store in Boston."

Raid Wardens In Bond Drive

More than 3500 Boston air raid wardens, who never were called on to act save in a test capacity, have a really important job starting Monday.

Under direction of the Boston Committee on Public Safety, the wardens will canvass every house in Boston in behalf of the Fifth War Loan drive

They seek to help in raising Boston's E bond quota of $40,394,000, or 36 per cent of the state's $112,000,000 E bond goal. Rallies to stimulate sales in the approaching drive are scheduled for tonight at Dorchester High School for Boys and for tomorrow night at Norfolk House, John Eliot sq.

Vacation Gas Gets Official OK

Those whose vacation still lies ahead were in luck today—OPA has given the go-ahead signal for all motorists holding A cards.

"Go ahead and enjoy yourself," was the happy advice given by Regional OPA Rationing Executive Fred A. McDermott.

The A-10 coupon, which has been valid since May 8 and expires Aug. 8, is good for any kind of pleasure. As for B and C card gasoline, OPA bubbles over with election-year goodness. They have ordered their inspectors not to stop cars along the road, and added there would be no check on the type of books carried by vacationists.

Lack of Nurses Perils Hospitals

The increasing demand for graduate nurses to serve with the armed forces is seriously threatening Boston's civilian hospitals, and Red Cross Volunteer Nurse's Aides are needed in greater number, Dr. N. W. Faxon, director of the Massachusetts General Hospital, announced today in endorsing the Boston Metropolitan Chapter's week's campaign to recruit 1000 women for this essential work.

Disabled Vets Get Rate Jump

Disabled veterans of this and the last World War were cheered today by announcement that benefit checks will be boosted 15 per cent on July 1 in order to compensate for increased living costs. Widows and dependent children also benefit, according to announcement by Edward T. Mulkern, chief of the contact division of the U. S. Veterans' Administration. It was pointed out that the increase was automatic and that there is no need to fill out applications in order to receive the increased benefits.

The advance provides a $5 monthly increase for widows, from $35 to $40. A corresponding increase is granted dependent children. Veterans receiving pensions of $40 a month will be given $50, while those on pension for more than 10 years will get $60.

Dorsey Police Trial To Continue Week

The secret trial of Capt. John A. Dorsey, former head of the Charlestown division, on charges of misconduct, continued before a trial board of three police captains today with indications that testimony will be taken for at least another week.

Latest witnesses to be called were Lieut. James Crowley of the bureau of criminal investigation, and two officers of the Charlestown branch of the National Shawmut Bank.

Allies Speed Drive Well Beyond Rome

By W. W. HERCHER

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 6 (AP)—Through a rolling ocean of clouds 5000 feet thick, Allied airforces threw 11,000 aircraft of almost every type into the grand invasion of Europe today, bombinb and strafing miles of Normandy's beaches and flying inland to break the enemy's communications.

"The battle to destroy the enemy continues without pause," said a communique.

Lieut.-Gen. Clark's troops have crossed or reached the Tiber all the way from Rome to the sea and enemy divisions still in the flatlands below the city are in desperate straits.

In the coastal area alone, well over 2000 prisoners apparently will be unable to scramble out of the Allied net because all Tiber bridges from Rome to the sea either have been blown up or captured.

In still-jubilant Rome, however, 11 crossings remained intact, and the Fifth Army poured across in a constant stream to chase the Germans fleeing northward in disorder.

The British Bomber Command sent more than 1300 of its biggest ships roaring across the channel last night and early today in the heaviest aerial attack ever aimed at German batteries along the French coast.

Ten attacks were executed between 11:30 p. m. and sunrise, each with 100 or more of the heavy bombers.

The stunning aerial mombardment fell on the Normandy landing beaches as the first phases of of the co-ordinated assault began.

There was a completec loud over some of teh RAOF coastal targets during the night, but the air ministry declared it was no obstacle to the well-trained pathfinder crews.

Jap Sea Losses Mounting Fast

By Associated Press

Destruction of Japan's dwindling seapower mounted today with Gen. MacArthur's announcement of the sinking of a destroyer and a freighter—losses which boosted the enemy's total to 20 ships in two days.

Liberator bombers, blasting the southern invasion road to the Philippines, spotted the Japanese destroyer off Halmahera and the freighter was bagged by attack planes in New Guinea waters. Other planes left a second enemy destroyer dead in the water and damaged two supply ships.

In land fighting, meantime, six Japanese columns tightened on Changsha, key city on the Hankow-Canton railway in China's Hunan province.

In the Southwest Pacific, American invaders of Biak Island, in the Schouten group off Dutch New Guinea, outflanked the Japanese defenders and cut in on the Mokmer airfield from two directions.

Separate Hero Pals By Marriage? Never

It appears that the girl who wants to marry either Corp. Frank A. Gilso of Margaret st., North End, or his buddy, Corp. Raymond Gallucci, 25, of Alley st., Lynn, will have to have a twin sister.

Since the war's outbreak, these two youths, friends since childhood and now enjoying a well-earned furlough from the South Pacific have, through a series of remarkable coincidences, done everything in pairs.

Both youths were inducted on the same day and both were sent to Camp Edwards for training. They sailed from America on the same boat and were among the first American troops to land.

They received training in jungle warfare together in New Caledonia, and together they went to Guadalcanal to relieve the Marines, in November, 1942.

It appeared they might be separated when Corp. Gilso was wounded in the leg four days before Christmas, but the following day Ray was wounded and they spent Christmas on adjoining cots.

They fought at Bougainville where they served until recently when the new system of rotating men went into effect. Two of the first three names down for furloughs were those of Ray and Frank and they thus have identical leaves.

They both wear identical decorations. They are the Purple Heart, a Presidential Citation, good conduct medals, the pre-Pearl Harbor and Southwest Pacific Medals.

Heart-Break Delights Seer

By PAULINE WARREN

A cheerful psychic who feasts on heart-break and makes it pay is a certain Madame X in Somerville. Within an hour, on a recent day, "Madame" predicted to a young girl and her companion, a soldier, headed overseas, that he would not come back; advised me to marry a rich nearby suitor as my fiance was in a prison camp with a broken back and then told Helen Farlow, my collaborator in this series, that her husband was untrue and running around with a blonde in Australia.

As I have no fiance or rich suitor, Madame's pronouncements did not upset me, nor did they upset Helen since her husband is right here in Boston, and not interested in blondes, but both our hearts ached for the young couple who had just preceded us.

While dispensing all this gloom Madame was the most cheerful creature imaginable. A glutton, she kept munching chocolates every few minutes, washing them down with enormous glasses of ginger-ale, and never once offering any to the clients succeeding each other at her little table with the clock-work precision of an assembly line.

IN BUSINESS 30 YEARS

Madame is well established. She boasts she has been doing readings for over 30 years. Yet she can't make up her mind how to spell the fancy name she has assumed. It's spelled one way in the telephone book and several other ways on the numerous cards scattered throughout her unattractive house.

Her fees vary as she gives what she calls "combination" readings Cards and crystal come at a dollar but cards and tea leaves are only 75c.

In appearance she's portly and placid with dark hair and blue eyes.

The time-worn method of eliciting information through the use of initials is Madame's stock in trade.

While studying the cards her client has shuffled, Madame suddenly announces she "sees" a C, or a W, or an A, or some other letter until she hits one the client can identify.

When she found out, through this fencing process, that I was looking for information about a fiance, supposedly listed as "Missing in Action," Madame gave me the works.

FIANCE BADLY HURT

"He's a prisoner," she said instantly, forgetting to look at the cards I had just cut. When I pointed this out to her, she quickly explained she was psychic and knew what the cards were saying without having to look at them.

I pressed her for more information and with a smirk of self-satisfaction she informed me my pseudo-fiance was badly hurt: "There is a bad injury to his back—broken, I think; his arm, too may have to come off," she said crisply, popping another chocolate into her mouth.

"He won't live long," she continued.

When pressed for an exact date, she first said five years, then amended that to:

"Just to 1945 he will live," she assured me without the slightest expression of sympathy.

After that, while she took large gulps of ginger ale, I allowed her to draw out of me that I had another (mythical) beau in the offing —"a business man," Madame assumed, "with lots of money and two children."

"He wants to marry you," Madame announced, then counseled: "Definitely he is the better man. He's the one you should marry."

Evidently a firm believer that a widower with much money is a better bet than a sick hero in a prison camp, Madame kept counseling me to forget the "fiance" and marry Johnny-on-the-spot.

Timidly I protested.

"But wouldn't it be better to marry my fiance when he gets back?"

"What would be the use?" Madame shrugged cynically. "He's going to die anyway . . ."

WOMAN IS A CAT

The rest of her predictions were rather vague. She prattled something about my having trouble over some property (I own no real estate), then discussed the family of the supposedly dying fiance:

"His mother doesn't like you," she warned, "and by the way, there is another woman around you who is a cat. Watch out for her, too. She's posing as your friend."

This is the ageless woman-against-woman angle which every fortune teller in the world uses over and over again.

A mind unbalanced by agonizing doubt over the fate of someone dear is just duck soup to this gluttonous female—she knows just how to feed on fear and make it pay. After all it must take a good deal just to keep her in ginger ale and chocolates!

One self-proclaimed "clairvoyant" boasted of the anguish she caused women by her predictions. Helen Weller tells about it in tomorrow's Boston American.

Does YOUR Dog "SCRATCH?"

If He Does, He Is in TORMENT

The best dog in the world can't be truly happy when he must continually scratch, dig, rub and bite himself, seeking relief from an intense itching irritation that has centered in the nerve endings of his skin. He is in frenzied torment—can't help himself. But you may. Try giving him as thousands are doing, Rex Hunters Dog Powders once each week. Note the quick difference. Learn why a glad purchaser wrote "I surely was pleased, as the 25c package helped my dog immediately. He has practically quit scratching, has more pep and his hair is glossy again." Rex Hunters Dog Powders cost only 25c at both Laidlaw's Pet Shops, 39 Bromfield St. and 119 Summer St. and leading dealers everywhere.

Cape Cod Officer In First Landing

Lieut. (jg) Gordon Burgess, Jr., of Waquoit, on Cape Cod, a veteran of the Sicilian and Italian landings, was the first Massachusetts man reported from overseas today as taking part in the first stages of the invasion of western Europe.

Lieut. Burgess, according to despatches from the D-Day front, was in command of a tank landing craft bearing Allied armor ashore in the assault on Hitler's Atlantic wall.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Burgess, Lieut. Burgess was educated at Holderness school and was graduated from Dartmouth in 1942. He joined the Navy immediately after graduation and was commissioned at Columbia University.

The following January he was married, taking the former Patricia Miller of Milwaukee as his bride. The couple have no children.

He went overseas for the first time a year ago this month, landing in North Africa and taking part almost at once in the successful invasion of Sicily.

Later he took part in two landing operations against Italy and has been stationed for the past few months in England, preparing for the assault against western Europe.

He is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Burgess.

Sponsored Programs Cancelled by NBC

NEW YORK, June 6 (INS)—Until further notice sponsored broadcasts on the National Broadcasting Company network, other than regularly scheduled news broadcasts, are being cancelled today in order to devote all available time to broadcast of news of the invasion, Niles Trammell, president of the National Broadcasting Company, announced today.

Martial music, to be interrupted as necessary for invasion news, will be substituted for the canceled commercial programs, Trammell said. The time usually devoted to commercial announcements will be given over to patriotic and war messages.

It'll Be Tough, Air Troops Told

A NINTH U. S. AIR FORCE TROOP-CARRIER BASE, June 6 (AP)—Air Marshal Trafford Leigh-Mallory, invasion air force commander, told combat crews at this troop-carrier and fighter base on the eve of D-Day that "being air-borne forces you have a tough assignment."

"You expert that," he said before telling them that the undertaking was "one of the greatest operations of is kind that ever has taken place in history.

"Others have wanted to do it—Hitler, for instance—but they have never been able to pull it off."

Then locking intently into the faces of hundreds of C-47 and glider pilots gathered about him in full battle dress, he said:

"I've watched you in training and I've been tremendously impressed by your enthusiasm and efficiency.

"I have the utmost confidence you will do your job damned well. My best wishes go with you."

Reopen St. Peter's

Petain Asks All Aid Nazis

LONDON, June 6 (AP)—The Paris radio today broadcast an appeal by Marshal Petain to Frenchmen to refrain from actions "which would call down upon you tragic reprisals."

"France has become a battlefeild," said the aged Vichy chief. "The circumstances of battle may compel the German army to take special measure in the battle area. Accept this necessity."

He called on officials, railwaymen and workers to remain at their posts—where they would serve the German military machine—"in order to keep the life of the nation and in order to carry out your tasks."

"Do not listen to outside voices calling on you not to listen to our decrees," he said.

A Day for Prayer

THIS is D-Day abroad as the brave young soldiers, sailors and airmen of the Allied Expeditionary Forces begin the long-awaited assault on Hitler's European fortress.

Let us make it PRAYER DAY at home in America.

Let us ask God to watch over our sons and loved ones as they approach the most perilous hours of their lives.

Let us ask God to ease the suffering of those who will be wounded and to be with those who die at sea and on the battlefield.

Let us ask God to grant that the weapons we have created for this supreme test may be sufficient and adequate.

Let us ask God to inspire the leaders who make decisions and plan strategy.

Let us ask God to hasten the moment of surrender and peace and to write a happy ending to this darkest chapter of human history.

It is too late to wish that our liberation forces had been mightier.

It is too late to undo anything that has been done.

BUT IT IS NOT TOO LATE TO TURN TO GOD THE SOURCE OF ALL STRENGTH, THE FOUNTAIN OF ALL HOPE, THE UNFAILING REFUGE OF ALL MANKIND.

So let us go to our open churches and lift up our hearts in prayer.

In the words of General Dwight D. Eisenhower, "let us all beseech the blessing of Almighty God upon this great and noble undertaking."

We cannot win without God.

But we can and most assuredly will win with Him.

Even now we may be certain our fighting sons are reciting that most beautiful of all petitions, the Lord's Own Prayer.

Pause, now, and recite it with them:

"Our Father, who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name.

"Thy kingdom come.

"Thy will be done, on earth as it is in Heaven.

"Give us this day our daily bread.

"And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us.

"And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.

"For Thine is the kingdom, and the power and the glory for ever and ever. Amen."

The price of victory is the blood of our sons.

May God, in His infinite goodness and mercy, make it small.

Prayers for D-Day

The following appropriate prayers, representative of the three leading religious faiths in America, express the feelings which are being expressed by the rank and file of Americans on this solemnly historic occassion.

By the Most Rev. FRANCIS J. SPELLMAN

O GOD, FATHER OF AMERICA:
Thou has formed this union of states, sealing it with high destiny,
That our nation be light to all peoples in their dark despair,
Life to all peoples in their fear of death,
Love to all peoples under the yoke of hate.
For this destiny, Thou dost teach us to fly as the eagle,
Girding us with lightning and thunder,
Enriching us with treasures in field and fold.
O God, bless America with Thy shielding graces,
Lest we become a nation without light, our eyes turned from Thee,
A nation without life, our souls sundered from Thee,
A nation without love, our hearts forgetting Thee.
O God, give us victory that is just, merciful and wise,
For Thou hast chosen America to be the soul of Thy justice,
The medium of Thy mercy,
The instrument of Thy wisdom.
Let all nations know that our justice comes from Thy spirit,
Our mercy from Thy heart,
Our wisdom from Thy mind,
Our victory from Thy strength.
Bless us, O God, with manifold graces,
To give freely of what we have,
To give fully of what we are,
In victory to give ourselves alone to Thee
O GOD, THE FATHER OF ALL NATIONS:
Hear our prayer for united peoples,
Grant guidance to our leaders,
protection to our sons,
And teach all of us Thy way of life in good will and peace.

By the REV. HENRY ST. GEORGE TUCKER

Almighty and most merciful God, Father of all mankind, Lover of every life, hear, we beseech Thee, the cry of Thy children in this dark hour of conflict, and danger.

Thou hast been the refuge and strength, in all generations, of those who put their trust in Thee, may it please Thee this day to draw to Thyself the hearts of those who struggle and endure to the uttermost. Have mercy on them and suffer not their faith in Thee to fail. Guide and protect them by Thy light and strength that they may be kept from evil.

May Thy comfort be sufficient for all who suffer pain or who wait in agony of uncertainty.

O Righteous and Omnipotent God, who, in their tragedies and conflicts, judgest the hearts of men and the purposes of nations, enter into this struggle with Thy transforming power, that out of its anguish there may come a victory of righteousness. May there arise a new order which shall endure because in it Thy will shall be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Forgive us and cleanse us, as well as those who strive against us, that we may be fit instruments of Thy purposes.

Unto our most gracious keeping we commend our loved ones and ourselves, ascribing unto Thee all praise and glory, through Jesus Christ, Our Lord. Amen.

By RABBI EDGAR F. MAGNIN

On the day of the invasion, we lift up our hearts to Thee, O Lord. We ask Thy blessing upon our country and upon the United Nations, be with our brave boys and their comrades who are giving their all to the cause of liberty and justice for all mankind.

May victory come soon. May it be a victory not only of arms but of the spirit. And may it be the beginning of a new order of things for this world. A reconsecration of our minds and hearts. May human lives not be lost in vain. Out of this tragedy, may there arise the dawn of a new age in which justice, love and human understanding will prevail.

And be with us, Our Father, who are on these shores. Bring comfort and solace to the mothers, fathers, wives and all the loved ones of our boys over there. Endow us with wisdom and righteousness, so that we may be worthy of them.

May we find the will somehow and the wisdom to end wars between nations for all time to come. May we correct within the borders of our own land all injustice, and observe in our daily lives the principles for which these brave men are fighting.

May we be kinder to each other, and bring about a unity of heart, mind and spirit in America that shall make us a strong nation and assure the perpetuation of our American ideals and way of life for generations to come.—Amen.

WASHINGTON, June 6—This is my day to be chivalrous. I wish to defend the fair name of American womanhood—and, if any objector wishes to joust with me, will he please bring two horses as I am somewhat short of jousting nags this season.

I rise in old world gallantry to correct a popular misconception about the nation's weaker sex, meaning dames. Contrary to what you may have heard, they are not rooking our males out of all their shoe coupons.

Nearly everywhere you go these days you hear that women have gone on a war-time orgy of shoe-buying; that they are practically wallowing in new shoes, while the men are trudging around on their uppers, or even barefooted.

This is absolutely untrue. I have figures up to the end of March this year which show that the production of shoes for women over 10 years of age has gone up only one-tenth of 1 per cent since the pre-war year of 1939!

It is generally agreed that females of all ages consume better than 60 per cent of all shoes produced, but this is extremely difficult of proof because infants wear the same kind of footgear, be they male or female. In fact, I was once shown a pair of my baby shoes and it took me years to get over the mortification.

However, women over the age of 10 always have been reasonably modest in their shoe purchases—and are continuing to exercise the same restraint.

PLEASE DO NOT skip the next paragraph just because it goes statistical, as it contains a complete defense for any of you dolls who may be accused of suddenly becoming shoe hogs.

In 1939 women over 10 consumed 42.8 per cent of all shoes manufactured. In 1940 they grabbed 41.8 per cent; in 1941, 41.2 per cent; 1942, 41.7 per cent; 1943, 42.6 per cent; and for the first three months of this year, 42.9 per cent.

If you wish to know where I got these figures, it was the Census Bureau. And, before you yell "What?" let me tell you that the Census Bureau performs many chores you never imagined.

You probably thought—as I did until today—that all it did was send pests around every 10 years to ask how many people were living in your dump and whether the Aunt Maggie listed was a permanent dweller or just an out-of-town visitor.

But the census people are slaving all the time. For one thing, they obtain statistics on nearly every article manufactured.

Shoe manufacturers, for instance, have to report to census every month on the number—and kind—of shoes produced. This information in turn goes to the Commerce Department's Division of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and also to the War Production Board and the Office of Price Administration.

It is invaluable. Said an OPA official:

"If we had no figures on production we would have no basis for figuring out consumer needs."

INCIDENTALLY, in the shoe trade, all footwear for kids under 10 is listed as "children's and misses'." No right-thinking shoe manufacturer would dream of dating up a "miss" for dinner.

In the apparel trade, however, a "miss" means anything from a school girl up to one of debutante age—and where on earth does that wonderful man Dixon dig up all this information?

OVER AT the headquarters of the Republican National Committee they are very worried about "The Voice of the Sewers."

The "voice" in question is that of Thomas G. Garry, Chicago's Commissioner of Sewers. As you may recall, Commr. Garry pulled an exceedingly fast one at the Democratic National Convention in 1940.

The Democrats were in the thick of trying to agree on a Presidential candidate when a great, booming voice suddenly and mysteriously filled the night.

"Missouri wants Roosevelt!" trumpeted the ghost voice. "Illinois wants Roosevelt! America wants Roosevelt! Humanity wants Roosevelt!"

The voice was caught up by the convention amplifying system and also by the batteries of microphones, so that it was broadcast over the land. Convention officials went mad trying to discover the source.

The mystery subsequently was solved. The phantom voice was that of Mayor Kelley's big sewer man. Garry had secreted himself away below decks and was shouting up a ventilator pipe!

AND NOW, naturally, you want to know why this is perturbing the Republicans. The reason is that their convention is going to be held in the Chicago stadium.

And the stadium—and everything connected with it—is under the direct, personal, control of this same Commissioner Garry!

When Republican National Chairman Harrison E. Spangler learned that the "Voice of the Sewers" was in charge, he gave orders that Garry and all the stadium ventilating pipes were to be watched like hawks throughout the convention.

Said one of Spangler's principal aides:

"We are not hidebound or narrow about these things. But we would not care to have a boom for Roosevelt suddenly fill the breezes at our convention."

Hollywood . . . By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, June 6—When Harriet Parsons (a young producer I know very well—in fact, she used to put the bite on me for ice cream sodas) finishes "The Enchanted Cottage," she takes over on her second RKO movie, "Who Could Ask for More?"

Penny Singleton

Authoress Kay Smith arrived Friday to huddle with Frank Gruber, who works with her on the script.

It follows closely Kay Smith's private life romance. Producer Parsons tells me she is a most charming person, a New York socialite who used to turn out songs on the "short order" basis as well as hits like "Can't We Be Friends?"

THERE CAN never be any question of the popularity of the "Blondie" series, which have flourished for three years like the well-known Green Bay tree. For a time there was talk they might be made at another studio, but Harry Cohn changed that today by announcing a new series, due to be produced soon with "Bondie Houses a Haunt" as the starter. Arthur Lake, who has made the character of "Dagwood" live; Penny Singleton as "Blondie" and "Baby Dumpling," all return in the new series, and that's good news for the fans.

SHERMAN BILLINGSLEY, who made the Stork Club famous and visa versa, gets his $100,000 life story rolling before the Paramount cameras sooner than anyone expected. Richard English, one of our best writers, has been engaged to write the original story of "Stork Club," based on Sherman's career as "mine host" of New York's famous night spot.

IDA LUPINO, I thought, looked extremely well when I met her at Wynn Rocomora's house. She told me she starts work at Warners in a Jules and Phillip Epstein comedy within three weeks. "No more neurotic women for me," said Ida. "I am going to do a gay comedy. I know that's what the boys overseas want. I've played these women with the wrong slant on life for so long I have decided to try and see if I can't add a little note of laughter to the world." Ida looked awfully well.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Gracie McDonald and Lieut. Mort Green of the Marines are about to set the day; K. T. Stevens and John Hambleton an around-the-town duo; Jennifer Jones as gay as a lark the other eve I saw her with Watson Webb at one of the local cafes; Judy Garland's housewarming brought out a lot of our literary lights; had a nice talk with Robert Nathan, who is here to stay. Mrs. Nathan goes to Cape Cod for a few weeks and then back to California to join her husband; two brilliant young song writers, Ralph Blane and Hugh Martin, played the delightful music from "Meet the People." Judy sang their song, which is sure to be a hit. It's called "Clang Went the Trolley"; Gilbert Roland, as we said, is out of the Army. His first job is at Columbia, where he replaces Jimmy Ellison in "Desert Hawk"; the sale of tickets at Paramount Wednesday night for "Dr. Wassell" was heart-warming to the Navy Aid Auxiliary girls, who have worked so hard.

GREER GARSON, who is a Danny Kaye fan, as are all of us, begged so hard he sang four or five of his best numbers; another guest, Lewis ("See What I mean") Browne, is writing a book and will bring it out soon.

NEW YORK, June 6—Forty-Second Street—back in the days when the Government was very glad to settle for 5 per cent tax and the 30 per cent bite hadn't been added to the owners' excuses for bad business—was just coming into its own as the most famous jazz strip in the world when two veteran night club owners opened the Famous Door.

There wasn't a big name on the bill, but the opening night crowd—song pluggers, musicians, hep cats, restaurant sales people and purveyors of alcoholic beverages — applauded heavily all night although they didnt seem to know or care how good the entertainers were.

It wasn't until much later that the night club crowd realized that Louis Prima's five-piece band was a sensation, and the wise boys stopped laughing at the big-eyed, sleek-legged job-hunting brunette who used to sit there night after night listening to Prima toot his horn. She used to sit there and sway gently to and fro and close her eyes and then open them and roll them around, because the sound of the horn "got" her.

She's a pretty fair talent scout, that Martha Raye. She called the turn on the New Orleans jazz king.

And the crowds began to understand it was smart to listen to plump Francis Faye's vociferous offerings, and laugh when she shouted the jive. Most of them didn't understand the hep talk in those days but they laughed anyhow, and then cornered Francis and had her supply translations.

There never was any doubt in the audiences' mind that the slim emcee who referred to the joint as an "upholstered sewer" would go places. Henny Youngman lived up to their expectations.

AT THE SAME club one evening Peggy Hopkins Joyce asked Francis Faye if she owned any diamonds. Francis confessed she didn't even have a good glittering rhinestone. Peggy reached into her handbag and took out a small stone.

"Then start your collection with this, honey. They're the best way in the world to keep your savings and they're so much prettier than dollar bills."

Francis probably wishes she had never taken that advice. She's been the victim of many an early hour holdup because of her penchant for wearing tons of valuable gems.

HOLLYWOOD, June 6—Jean Blondell will play the lead in "The Naked Genius" when Twentieth Century-Fox makes it . . . Metro is trying to get a screenplay out of Elinor Glyn's novel, "Three Weeks" that will get by the Hays office. If they do, the picture will be made in Technicolor with Hedy Lamarr and Walter Pidgeon . . . Lion Feuchtwanger has written a play, "Arms for America," which deals with the American Revolution and tells how Benjamin Franklin went to France to appeal for lend-lease for this country. Charles Laughton will play the role of Franklin . . . William Wyler has been promoted to a full colonel . . . Anne Rutherford asked for and received her release from Twentieth Century-Fox . . . They are trying to get Ben Hecht to go to London to write the scenario of "The Story of William Shakespeare".

Irene Dunne

K. T. STEVENS and Helmut Dantine continue to be a thing . . . Paramount is considering remaking Mary Roberts Rinehart's "Bab; A Sub-Deb," for a series with Diana Lynn . . . Carmen Amaya was being interviewed by Writer-Producer Edmund L. Hartmann during a rehearsal for a dance number. Amaya did some of her heel-stamping which sounded more like a machine gun than a dance. "You do everything fast," he told the dancer. The Spanish girl agreed. "Si, Amaya eat fast, like this." She demonstrated a speed-up illustration of a person devouring a meal in a twinkling. "Amaya drink fast," and the dancer demonstrated. "Amaya go to sleep in a hurry," and she showed how, making snoring noises. "Amaya do everything fast except love. That ees one thing Amaya no like to hurry."

THE IRATE WAITERS OF BOSTON are not limiting their campaign against suspected chiselers to the one large hotel which is now being investigated, on the disposition of banquet tips, by the D. A.'s office . . . A function-manager of an uptown hotel, where wedding breakfasts and luncheons are popular, is enduring unwittingly his third consecutive month of intensive scrutiny . . . This gentleman works also for a prominent hotel-chain . . . The waiters believe that tens of thousands of dollars in tips earmarked for distribution among them have been diverted.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Leo Reisman, the maestro, and Victor Borge, are indulging in a friendly game of trying to get the other off cue in the middle of Borge's tremendous 45-minute act at the Statler Terrace Room . . . Reisman and Borge worked their current routine together at the Waldorf . . . With lovely dancing Tahlia as the feminine appeal of their floor-show, the Messrs. Borge and Reisman (the maestro being an assisting comedian) furnish, in this opinion, the most entertaining floor show of the season.

BORGE BRINGS the only fresh attack to comedy that has been poured on an appreciative public since one Robert Benchley broke into the big-time with a monologue called the "Treasurer's Report" . . . (Mr. Benchley's debut occurred in October, 1923, the night that the "Third Music Box Revue" had its metropolitan premiere) . . . The Borge inventiveness is at its best when he describes to his own pianoforte, the origin of such opera as Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody, and the elder Strauss's composing of the Blue Danube Waltz while he (presumably) spat out cherry pits . . . Victor's famous "punctuation" monologue has so infectious a quality that guests are talking across the table in commas, question-marks, and periods . . . The resultant noises compete with the popping of champagne corks to make the Terrace Room the most interestingly noisy supper-room in the East.

A BESPECTACLED COMEDIAN who used a trademark, "I'll shoot to kill," was the highlight of the Latin Quarter's Guest Night . . . After a terrific buildup, this young comic held the floor for nearly ten minutes without evoking two laughs . . . Dolly Dawn, a few appearances later, merely had to breathe the threat "I'll shoot to kill" when the house was hers . . . What a self-assured and clever young entertainer Miss Dawn has turned out to be! . . . And can she sell a song! . . . (The bespectacled comedian was being called the "Kid Parker of the Comics" after the Latin Quarter Guest Night, and a repeat appearance at the Mayfair tonight should mean a sell-out.)

WAVE Joins Brides

By BETTY ALDEN

ROMANTIC TIDINGS are waiting to catch up with Elizabeth Lowell Putnam, WAC, who has yet to learn that her sister, Lieut. (jg) Katherine Putnam of the WAVES, was married Sunday to Lieut. Thaddeus R. Beal, USNR.

"Elizabeth left for overseas before we could get word to her of Katherine's engagement and approaching marriage," said Mrs. Putnam this morning "and we don't know yet where she is."

After a brief honeymoon Katherine and her bridegroom will return to their respective Navy duties—she to Davisville, R. I., where she is communications officer, and he to join his ship.

Though the wedding was planned on a few days notice it turned out to be a merry family reunion. The Harvey Bundys, uncle and aunt of the bride, were on from Washington where he is in the War Department, and Mrs. John Graham, sister of the bride, came from New York.

The wedding at Emmanuel Church, Manchester, was followed by a wedding breakfast at the summer home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Putnam, at Lobster Cove. Peonies and bridal wreath from the Putnam gardens decorated the church and the bride was married in her uniform. Her sister, Helen, and the groom's sister, Alice, were bridesmaids.

The groom's step-father, George van Santvoord of Lakeville, Ct., was best man and the ushers were George Putnam, Jr., Alger Beal and Paul Thompson, cousin of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Putnam are noted dog fanciers and raise prize winning poodles at their Lobster Cove kennels. In addition to the wedding they had their hands full last week-end with the annual spring show of the Ladies Dog Club of which Mrs. Putnam is president.

'Love on Leave' Lacks Taste

By PEGGY DOYLE

Taste, notably on the visual side this play-going semester, took a complete holiday during last night's unveiling of "Love on Leave," the Charles Stewart-Martin Goodman production of the new comedy by A. B. Shiffrin at the Wilbur.

A charming comedy about teen-agers, and a fine, serious drama about juvenile delinquency having clicked on Broadway, Mr. Shiffrin apparently decided a blend of the two with a broadly farcical handling might duplicate their box office success.

The result is unpalatable, embarrassing, unoriginal, depressing. Its crude exploitation of the most frightening problem on the home-front . . . with the accent undeviatingly on comedy . . . is flagrantly offensive. For parents of teen-aged daughters or for any one with the slightest awareness of this increasingly alarming wartime menace there is nothing amusing about a 14-year-old girl blind-dating a sailor. And, granted you're too callous to be affected by such things, where is the entertainment value in this only too realistic and unfunny situation?

Millard Mitchell, recently seen here in "The Naked Genius," and Boston's charming Mary Sargent, play the parents of Rosemary Rice's worrisome 14-year-old with what grace they can muster. Both are burdened with some very corny "sides" and Mitchell is put in a particularly embarrassing spotlight when he is called upon to play the outraged father in strictly ten, twenty, thirty, style.

Rosemary Rice's junior miss is frankly detestable at times, the wrong times, we might add. She also has been hammed up in the script and when she isn't too, too arch, she's too, too smartypants. This too much of a muchness is the matter with most of the play's other characters. Bert Freed and John Conway, as the two sailors on leave, are too boisterous and too noble respectively. Stanley Bell, fiance of the wayward schoolgirl's elder sister, is teacher's pet grown up, and Eleanor Gordon, as his mother, is a caricature of a dominating, doting birdbrain. Roderick Maybee's policeman, John Farrell's police sergeant and Joann Dolan's blondined, hip-swinging uniform-chaser are other comic valentines.

The occasional interludes that please in "Love on Leave" are when the Wilson family get together and banter and bicker as families do and will as time goes by. That first scene, which turns out to be just a fooler, is just such a typical moment en famille with everyone barging in on the poor, old bread winner, as he tries to run up "an article" on his typewriter with a deadline around the corner.

MENACE is Charles Boyer's specialty in M-G-M's "Gaslight," in which he is co-starred with lovely Ingrid Bergman and Joseph Cotten. Boyer's role in the film is unlike any he has ever played, that of a man who deliberately sets out to drive his wife insane, hide the terrifying secret of his as "Gaslight" opens on Keith Memorial screen tomorrow.

Beauty

Skins Need Milk Now

THE CREAMY SMOOTHINESS of a distinctive complexion milk will bring lustre and elasticity to a complexion constantly lifted to the sun come the tropical heat days.

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

SUMMER HAS ITS JOYS and its pains, too. For, no matter how wonderful the weather is . . . how right the court . . . or how nicely the score is rolling up . . . the aftermath of a morning of good tennis . . . or badminton can be very painful . . . if you have the slightest tendency to sunburn . . . and haven't taken the proper precautions.

By now, of course . . . every last girl and woman knows that the smartest summer clothes are sleeveless . . . backless . . . low-necked and short. Never was the condition of her skin . . . all over . . . as important as it is this year. It's more than an asset to have a satin-skinned body . . . it is a necessity.

So . . . please cover all exposed parts . . . especially the shoulders and back of the neck . . . as well as your face-is-your-fortune countenance with a generous coating of this complexion milk . . . a liquid skin cream smooth and refreshing . . . that brings elasticity and lustre to a dried skin.

It forms a perfect face powder base, besides, a light, thin-cream consistency base that keeps your skin soft and pliant under your makeup. This creamy cosmetic is so effective you'll virtually want to bathe in its snowy-white consistency.

MEN CAN USE IT, TOO

Just pour a quantity the size of a dime into your hands . . . rub your palms together and then smooth this white lusciousness over your throat and face with upward strokes. Unless the skin is excessively dry . . . blot the face with tissue. If you continue to use this complexion milk . . . your complexion will become so lustrously lovely you'll be amazed at your own beautiful transformation.

Men will enjoy its benefits, too. For it is invisible . . . non-sticky, and isn't perfumed . . . so every He-Man can use it without fear of going sissy.

For the name of this complexion milk, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Monday—I spent a great deal of time at the Beltsville Agricultural Experimental Station yesterday, a few miles outside of Washington.

We walked along a bank and saw all the different kinds of grasses which are being tried out for holding road banks or river banks. One particular kind, which should grow in our climate, was a great discovery. I also found a kind of grass that will grow in our Dutchess County climate, in the shade, something I have long been searching for and which I shall try out.

Then we visited the experimental strawberry bed. A few of the varieties were named, but most of them were merely numbers, since they were the product of experiments which will cross some varieties to change their colors or taste, and to make them stand up better under transportation to market. One of the berries which tasted best, I was told, would be of very little use on the market because of its color, but I may try planting some of these berries myself next year.

In the late afternoon I visited the Bethesda, Md., USO, where men from the naval hospital and visiting servicemen were being served a coffee, waffles and sausage supper by the men of the neighborhood. Everyone seemed to be having a good time.

In the evening I saw the film which Mr. Julian Bryan has made for the YMCA. I hope it will not only be shown here but also in many parts of the world, during their centennial celebration. It ought to give many people satisfaction to realize that, from such small beginnings, a good idea may grow to be an influence all over the world. We need the "Y's," both for young men and young women, as much today as in 1844.

I was reminded of this when I talked to a very attractive Chinese woman, Miss Tsai Kwei, national secretary of the YWCA of China, who came with Miss Ruth F. Woodsmall, general secretary of the world's YWCA, to talk about their work.

It Seems Risky

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: A man about 30 years older than I am, is very much in love with me. At first I didn't care for him, but now that he has become less attentive and I don't see him often, I realize I also love him.

Being so much older than I am he realizes that our marriage would be a mistake, as he thinks I would never care much for him. He also thinks my parents would never approve. We're still friends and I see him occasionally.

Do you think it would be all right to try and make him realize that I do care for him, or shall I forget the matter

You're experiencing a case of "blessings brighten as they take their flight." And while there have been outstanding cases in which a rare and unusual love has spanned the gap of 30 years, it's a highly risky experiment. The wiser course would be for you to take an interest in some-one nearer your own age.

Border Prints for Summer

By BETTINA BEDWELL

DRESSES that carry all their printed style message on their borders are appearing around in some of the best places.

They have plenty of drama, but just the same can be worn a lot, which you can't say about the super-dramatic all-over print. I have chosen one of these border prints to show you. It is from that very clever California designer, Luella Ballerina, and is chalk-white crepe with the border in wine red, gold and brown.

The design of the border certainly stems from the Indians. Cut like a shirtwaist, this model uses the border design for a shoulder yoke, a belt, and for the deep and dramatic hem to the softly-gathered skirt.

Berry Pie Recipes

By MARTHA LEE

JUNE IS THE MONTH for pie-making—delicious juicy pies! A dessert which the older members of the family await with the eagerness of the children is a crunchy cereal pie shell filled with luscious, tart berries and crowned with the fluffiest frosting you've ever tasted. It's just the kind of a pie that you can "bake in the refrigerator" on a warm summer day.

This frosted pie owes much of its perfection to an extra crisp flake cereal crust. The crust is a quick never-fail trick to turn out, using corn, bran, or wheat flakes.

FROSTED BERRY PIE

Cereal crust:

4 cups corn, bran, or wheat flakes or crisp rice cereal
1-3 cup margarine or butter

Roll or crush the cereal to obtain one cup of very fine crumbs. Melt the margarine or butter, add it to the cereal and mix thoroughly. Press evenly into a pie pan, making the bottom slightly thicker than the sides. Chill thoroughly in the refrigerator for one hour.

Frosting and filling:

1 egg white 1 cup sugar
1/4 cup water Pinch salt
1/8 tsp. cream of tartar
1 tsp. vanilla
2 cups drained, sliced strawberries

Place unbeaten egg white, sugar, water, salt, and cream of tartar in top of double boiler. Cook over boiling water, beating constantly, until the mixture thickens and forms soft peaks, about 7 minutes. Remove from the heat, add the vanilla, and continue beating until cool and thick. Arrange the sliced strawberries (or other fruit) in thoroughly chilled cereal shell. Pour the frosting over the fruit, allowing it to run between. Garnish with whole berries. Chill one hour before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Also glorious to behold, and glorious to taste is a cherry pie. The best ones, of course, are the ones with two crusts, with juice just thick enough, yet not as stiff as a pudding. When bran goes in the pastry-making, there's a nice nut-like taste that blends beautifully with the tart cherries.

CHERRY PIE

1 recipe all-bran pastry
1 1/2 cups sugar, depending on tartness of fruit
3 tbsp. flour 1/4 tbsp. salt
3 cups pitted sour cherries
1 tbsp. butter

Line a 9-inch pie pan with pastry. Mix 1 tablespoon sugar with flour and sprinkle over pastry. Mix remaining sugar and salt. Fill shell with alternate layers of cherries and sugar mixture. Dot with butter and cover with pastry. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) 30 to 40 minutes. Makes one 9-inch pie.

BRAN PASTRY

1/4 cup all-bran 1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 tsp. salt 1/2 cup shortening
4 tbsp. cold water (more or less)

Roll bran until fine; combine with flour and salt. Cut in shortening. Add water, a little at a time, until dough is moist enough to hold together. Roll out on lightly floured board to about 1/8 inch in thickness. Makes one 2-crust pie or two 8-inch pastry shells.

RHUBARB PIE

1 bran pastry shell (unbaked) 1 cup sugar
2 tbsp. flour
4 cups rhubarb 1/4 tsp. salt
1 egg

Line pie pan with bran pastry. Cut rhubarb in half-inch pieces and scald. Drain and arrange in unbaked pastry shell. Beat egg until light. Mix sugar, flour and salt together and add gradually to egg, beating well. Pour over rhubarb. Put strips of pastry across the top. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) about 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 deg. F. and bake about 40 minutes longer. Makes one eight-inch pie.

23 Million Down Drain From Dogs

By AUSTEN LAKE

Last night by the light o' the silvery moon and under the hard glare of overhead lamps Boston's favorite lunacy began its ninth season. Yes, 20,000 stormed the mutuel windows at Revere's Wonderland to begin the 10th annual flow of out-patient's money on the running greyhounds.

Wonderland is a lovely garden spot which was reared in 1935 over a mosquito swamp and is just what its name implies, an object of revered wonderment to the dog gamblers of the U. S. A., a splendid boon to Boston's boredom and a golden fountain to its backers, who have handled a 9-year total of $140,914,126, of which the track's percentage was $15,729,294. And here we go again!

Austin Lake

I don't imply that the 15¾ millions skimmed by the track is clear profit—what with taxes, operation cost and the price of political patronage, though my estimate of the latter is naturally hazy. But whatever the net left-over of 15¾ millions may be it represents a very luscious bit of business for an original investment of $350,000, which I hear was mostly put on the cuff by the contractors who built the place and paid in stock.

So doesn't it seem silly to think how aghast our pious people were in 1935 when the streamlined pooches bagged $125,000 nightly, of which the state's and track's end was 15 per cent, plus breakage? Because, if there are any pious people left, the figures for the following years will give them opportunity to get more aghast. Leave us look:

| | Handle | Track's Percentage | State's Percentage |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1935 | $9,211,854 | $1,128,648 | $410,514 |
| 1936 | $12,218,686 | $1,487,039 | $526,827 |
| 1937 | $12,828,889 | $1,560,080 | $549,968 |
| 1938 | $13,197,281 | $1,607,941 | $571,154 |
| 1939 | $14,989,354 | $1,768,148 | $683,364 |
| *1940 | $13,581,951 | $1,516,119 | $722,278 |
| 1941 | $17,589,499 | $1,870,275 | $992,705 |
| 1942 | $18,826,250 | $1,963,436 | $1,091,704 |
| 1943 | $28,574,812 | $2,807,598 | $1,817,578 |
| Total | $140,914,126 | $15,729,294 | $7,365,587 |

We All Guessed Wrong!

Anyway this is a time for stock taking. Because, way back in 1935, when I wrote an opus after snooping around the St. Petersburg, Fla., Kennel Club, that dog racing had more honest possibilities than horse racing, I received a flood of outraged letters from the moralizers of our community.

The moralists predicted sin and corruption if the weasel bellied purps were allowed to race in our sacred purlieus. I recall making the more temperate surmise that all would be well because such moonlight madness, born in a state famed for its lunacies, like ladies shopping in satin pajamas and gents swallowing gin for breakfast, would not thrive in a sane, frugal and industrious center like this neck of the seaboard.

To their early disgruntlement but later delight.

CRONIN ATTACK UNJUST

By JACK CONWAY

A SLIGHTLY battered Red Sox club will be back at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon with the Yanks as opponents. There will be additional clashes with Joe McCarthy's team on Thursday and Saturday and a double-header on Sunday.

Joe Cronin

Baseball clubs have found it very profitable to have Sunday double-headers. There was a period when the magnates arranged synthetic double-headers by calling off regularly scheduled games on one pretext or another. They are now more honest on their desire for two games each Sunday, and they allow open dates to secure the necessary extra attractions.

Baseball has also moved away from Monday games when possible. Following Sunday crowds of from 20,000 to 30,000 persons, there were few cash customers left for the Monday games. Even Tuesdays have at times been left as open dates as is the case in Boston this week.

The race tracks have not voiced any protest against open dates. The baseball gamblers, and there is still such a species, has to risk his cash on something each afternoon, and if he cannot bet on a ball game he tries his fortune with the noble breed of thoroughbreds.

The Athletics will come to Boston next Tuesday after which the Sox depart for a swing around the Eastern circuit and the Braves come home.

THE MOST SOUR note in the Red Sox Western invasion was not the fact the team did not look impressive, but rather the attitude of the fans towards Joe Cronin. The Sox manager was booed for his failure to get sufficient hits and to look brilliant in the field. This was one of the most unfair attacks in the history of American League baseball and shouldruns.

be resented by every fair-minded fan.

Cronin has been playing for the Sox because the club has been in desperate need of material rather than because he has the ability or the desire to get into the game. Cronin is all through as a top baseball player and he has known this for several years.

This is why Joe secured Johnny Pesky and placed him at his former position at shortstop. Pesky was an immediate success. Johnny not only fielded his position perfectly, but he batted for more than 300 in his first year in the majors.

Like Ted Williams, Dom DiMaggio and other Sox stars, Pesky entered service. Cronin was reluctant to return to baseball as an active player, but he finally consented to do so when the Sox showed batting weakness due to the loss of so many stars

CRONIN IS the greatest clutch hitter baseball has known in recent years. With the big chips down, the Sox pilot is always at his best. He has frequently injected himself into the game as a pinch hitter at critical stages of the battle and smashed out home

Downs Calls Off Races; Raynham, Revere Close

Horse racing was cancelled for today at Suffolk Downs, Pascoag in Rhode Island, and Aqueduct in New York, because of D-Day.

The directors of both the Revere and Raynham dog tracks cancelled their programs scheduled for tonight. The same cards slated for tonight will go tomorrow night.

After issuing scratches and announcing the jockeys, the officials at River Downs and Detroit tracks changed their minds and cancelled the race card for today.

SEC Asks Receivership In Probe of Downs Head

Charging the Aldred Investment Trust, which gained control of Suffolk Downs last winter, had been insolvent since 1937 and that its officers had misused its funds to acquire the track, the Securities and Exchange Commission sought appointment of a receiver for the trust in federal court today.

Edward Cashin of New York, SEC counsel, told Judge George C. Sweeney the trust officers had "speculated" $1,195,000 in purchase of the track's common stock and had paid more than $20 a share higher than the bid price to gain control of the track.

"BANKRUPT"

Named in the SEC complaint, which seeks preliminary and final injunctions against the trust as well as a receiver to liquidate its assets were:

Gordon B. Hanlon, president of the trust and head of Suffolk Downs; John L. Arnold, treasurer of Suffolk Downs; Robert P. Loring, vice-president of the track; Elton N. Hanlon, W. Edward Higbee, Malcolm M. Bowen and Ezra B. Hart.

Cashin related how Hanlon gained control of the trust in 1941 and a few weeks later superseded the existing trustees and elected a new board, consisting of himself and the several defendants.

He charged Hanlon knew the trust was "hopelessly bankrupt", and that he was in a position to dissolve it and divide the proceeds pro rata among creditors but had failed to do so.

Cashin declared that Hanlon approached the SEC three months after acquiring control of the trust with a plan for reorganization.

At the time the SEC decided the plan was unfair to debenture holders in that it would deprive them of the right to terminate the trust. The proposed reorganization plan was abandoned, Cashin said, when the SEC informed Hanlon it felt there was no justification for continuation of the trust.

He charged that as far back as 1937 the trust's assets were small-er than its outstanding debenture obligations and that in 1939 a substantial portion of the interest on debentures was paid from capital as the trust's entire income was insufficient to meet the obligation.

Despite this situation, Cashin said, the trust's present officers continued to vote and pay themselves large salaries after acquiring control.

SOUGHT PARK

Cashin declared Hanlon first sought to acquire control of Rockingham Park last September and at that time told General Manager Lou Smith he was also interested in the purchase of a dog track.

He said Hanlon subsequently conferred with officials of the Raynham and Revere dog tracks before the discussions with Eastern Racing Ass'n officials which led to the trust acquiring control of Suffolk Downs.

several places. They said there was especially bitter fighting at the mouths of the Orne and Vire rivers.

The air-borne troops' principal scenes of operations were placed by the Germans at Caen and Barfleur. The Germans said the American 28th and 100th parachute divisions had landed on the Normandy peninsula, along with the American 28th and 100th air-borne divisions. They said the British 1st and 6th air-borne divisions were operating in the Seine bay area. The Germans complained that at some points dummy parachutists were dropped, exploding on touch.

The tenor of their accounts lent support to Prime Minister Churchill's assertion that "there already are hopes that actual tactical surprise has been attained" and that "we hope to furnish the enemy with a succession of surprises during the course of the fighting."

PUSH ON FOR PARIS

If the Germans were correct about the locations, the Allied plan apparently was to seize the Cherbourg peninsula and make Normandy the initial beachhead for a drive up the Seine valley to Paris.

The German radio began broadcasting a constant stream of invasion flashes almost as soon as the first troops landed, an dcontinued with extensive reports of the gigantic naval and air bombardments that covered the assault.

Allied headquarters, however, kept silent until 9:32 a. m. British time (3:32 a. m., Boston time), when the following communique was issued:

"Under the command of Gen. Eisenhower, Allied naval forces supported by strong airf orces began landing Allied armies this morning on the northern coast of France."

A high officer explained that Gen. Eisenhower had kept resolutely silent until he was absolutely certain the landings had taken hold."

SHIPS SHELL AREAS

It was disclosed that a number of unannounced feints had taken place in the pre-invasion period, so that the Germans would not know when the real blow was coming.

Warships of both the British and United States navies, including British and American battleships, hurled shells into the coastal defenses which the Germans have been building for four years. The Germans acknowledged this fire was tremendous and that it had set the whole Bay of the Seine area afire.

Parachutists and glidermen in a personal farewell from Gen. Eisenhower. The Germans said they landed at Caen and made deep penetrations at many points, with at least four British parachute divisions employed besides the Americans and Canadians.

Great flotillas of minesweepers led the way to the beaches for the Allied ground troops, and the sweeping operation alone was described by SHAEF as "the largest in history."

ROUGH WATER, RAIN

The German navy was represented only by a few destroyers and E-boats.

The channel was rough and there was a shower of rain at dawn. An supreme command headquarters it was stated that the condition of the sea had caused some great anxiety, but that the troops had gone ashore, even though many were seasick.

The Allied Air Forces had been ready for days, but were awaiting the best moment from the weather standpoint.

"We have been months and years waiting for this," said a senior officer giving correspondents the story at headquarters.

"Geography made it evident to the Germans as well as us that the shortest way to Europe was across the channel.

"I don't know how much tactical surprise we achieved. It is too early to tell."

If the landings were in the places listed by the Germans, the Allied aim apparently was to pinch off the Cherbourg peninsula and the good ports of Cherbourg and Le Havre, make Normandy their first main beachhead and drive up the Seine valley to Paris.

The landings had been in progress several hours before the Allied communique was issued.

Allied soldiers leaped onto the shores which the Germans have spent nearly four years in fortifying, while Allied planes and ships hurled into those defenses barrages which the Nazis admitted were terrific.

FRENCH WARNED

The fleet included several battleships, which the Germans said set the whole Seine bay area ablaze with their fire.

The Germans announced also that American reinforcements began landing at dawn, aided by artificial fog, and that in some places dummy paracnutists were dropped to confuse the defense.

French patriots previously had been warned by Allied radio broadcasts to get out of areas within 22 miles of the coast to escape the shock of battle and the gigantic aerial bombardment.

TODT FORTS ALFAME

An Associated Press correspondent flying over the French coast in a B-26 Marauder reported seeing the fields inland strewn with hundreds of parachutes and dotted with gliders, while great naval forces fired into the coast fortifications.

During the 48 hours previous to the landings RAF and American bomber fleets dropped a stupendous tonnage of bombs on the west wall's defenders.

A canopy of American and British bombers and fighters turned the Todt fortifications on which Hitler had pinned his hopes into a jumping, jagged mass of flames.

The western front opening climaxed years of patient preparation by the top military minds of America and Britain, and hard work in factories and munitions plants by millions of Americans and Britons.

The plan of attack was the same which General Eisenhower had when he came to England in June, 1942, but which was shelved during the improvised North African operation.

This morning the sweat and toil of the factory worker of America and Britain, and the cool planning of the military men of both countries bore fruit.

LITTLE TO CHANCE

Every weapon that has proved its worth since Pearl Harbor was in the hands of the fighting men of the United Nations.

What success they would meet no one could say with certainty.

No such attempt has been made in warfare before on such a huge scale—to storm a continent from the sea against fixed defenses.

Eisenhower and the supreme Allied staff had left as little as possible to chance.

Several weeks ago all the air forces in the United Kingdom were placed under the strategic command of SAEF to pave the way for the landings.

The strategic air forces under Lieut.-Gen. Carl A. Spaatz were assigned the task of smashing the German aerial reserves by bombing aircraft factories deep in Germany.

OTHER TARGETS

The RAF under Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur T. Harris was given a similar order, only its primary targets were railroads.

The Ninth Air Force under Lieut.-Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, along with the Second RAF Tactical Air Force, was assigned selected targets along the West Wall itself.

on the water, all with prows pointed toward Axis soil.

Bryan, said by NBC to be the first radio correspondent to return to England after the landings, told of talking with the men before they parachuted earthwards.

Briefing periods before the take-off were described by the NBC reporter who also is a staff member of the Atlanta Journal. He related how the men were placed under strict guard many hours before they left on their assignment.

EISENHOWER VISITS TROOPS

The men filed into trucks after the briefing, he said, and were taken to planes which lined the airfield for the takeoff.

Gen. Eisenhower visited the air-borne troops the afternoon of D-day, Bryan added, and went about the camp asking names and patting the boys on the back.

Franklin Banker, AP man at a U. S. fighter base in Britain, sent this dispatch: "In the dawn dozens of American transport planes and gliders carrying parachute and airborne troops flew from British bases towards the French coast. It was about 5 a. m. (11 p. m. Monday, Eastern War Time.)

"'They're going over as thick as flies,' said an American fighter pilot just before he, too, flew off on a different assignment—patroling the French coast to protect Allied land, sea and air operations.

"'The sky was black with them as they headed for France above scattered clouds,' reported Lieut. Ralph Santasiero, Bellerose, N. Y., a Thunderbolt pilot.

"'Big red flares and flashes' were spotted in the distance by Lieut. Duane Bunce, Minneapolis, who figured they came from shellings on the French coast.

CLEAR CHANNEL OF SUBS

"Squadrons of fighter pilots patrolled the French coast in endless relays to 'run interference' for the big bombers—RAF Halifaxes and Whitneys and U. S. Liberators—which were searching for Nazi submarines off shore to keep the channel open for Allied naval craft.

"'We were acting as a buffer,' said Lieut. Thomas Hamilton, Miami, Fla., a fighter pilot. 'But we didn't see a thing except bad weather. I don't think the Huns could get off the ground. If they had there would have been a general rat-race through the clouds, for there was a thick overcast up to 7000 feet.'"

Lee Carson, International News Service staff correspondent at an advanced fighter base in England, reported: "The beaches of northern France are alive with Allied troops landing in wave after wave, fighter pilots returning from the invasion coast reported today.

"The landings were carried out under the red glare and black smoke of Allied and German guns exchanging fire over the channel waters.

"Lieut.-Col. Frank Perego of New York, who went over in support of the landing groups, said:

"'It's black as hell on the beachhead areas.

"'It's a scene you can't describe. You can see the flashes of those guns as soon as you leave the English coast.

PILING UP ON BEACHES

"'Troops are piling up on the beaches as thick as seaweed. The Navy is out there in the channel banging away broadsides.

"'Our planes are all over the place, but I didn't see any Jerries.'

"Thunderbolt and Mustang fighter-bombers poured a constant fire out of the sky into enemy gun positions.

"The squadrons from this base—low-flying Lightnings—covered a broad shipping lane siphoning troops ashore in a steady stream, while medium altitude Marauder bombers roared overhead on a shuttle bombing system, pounding the second line of defenses and Nazi troop concentrations.

"The planes relentlessly pounded anti-aircraft and machinge-gun positions and rocket installations.

"Convoys of German vehicles attempting to creep forward to support the hard-pressed enemy beach forces are being shredded by Thunderbolts and Mosquitoes in murderous strafing operations. A Thunderbolt Flight D leader, Capt. Thomas Montang, of West Bend, Ia., said:

"'There are so many of our planes over there you have to put out your hand when you want to turn.'

"The greatest air, ground and sea operations in history chewed great hunks from the German west wall as a continuous torrent of fire power and men were hurled into the beachheads."

BAY STATER COMMANDS

I found a number of youthful veterans aboard the ship, whose commander was Lieut. (jg) Gordon F. Burgess, Jr., of Waquoit, Mass., wounded at Salerno after landing in Sicily. Lieut (jg) Robert S. Evans of Williamsville, N. Y., also made the Sicily and Salerno landings.

Burgess guided the ship up to another LCT to tie up. A sailor tossed a rope to a slim figure on theh bride and shouted: "Hey, Joe, catch this rope." Joe caught it.

I recognized "Joe" as a one-star general and climbed over to talk to him.

"They're not letting me in on this one, damn it!" he said.

An LCT is not the most comfortable ship in the world on which to go to war. It is simply an open deck with steel sides and very limited covered quarters—only sufficient to accomodate the crew. Other passengers have to sleep on deck or in vehicles as best as possible.

Army Cooks Master Sergt. James Chrest of Ft. Screven, Ga., and Sergt. Key Gee of Binghamton, N. Y., a native of China, moved into the diminutive galley and prepared meals for the Army personnel. Chrest was born in Greece, has had 35 years of Army service and his taught Gee to speak Greek, mostly cuss words.

Translating one of Chrest's phrases, Gee explained: "He say, we go on the ball."

Bishop Composes Invasion Prayer

Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, D. D., administrator of the Boston archdiocese, composed a special Invasion day prayer today and included it in his mass at Sacred Heart church, Newton Center:

"O God, who through the grace of the Holy Spirit has poured into our heart the gift of charity, grant to all who fight for us by sea, land and air, safety of soul and body, that they may love Thee with all their strength, and do, with all their love, what is pleasing in Thy sight."

"We shall now bring music for the invasion forces."

Washington Reacts Solemnly to It All

By JOSEPH A. BORS

WASHINGTON, June 6 (INS)—Gen. John J. Pershing, who led the United States Army to victory over Germany in the first World War, today highlighted Washington reaction to the second World War invasion of Europe by declaring "we will win through to victory."

As news of the cross-channel invasion was flashed throughout the nation's capital, the War Department issued a statement by Pershing predicting Allied victory over Germany in the Second World War. Pershing asserted the Allies would "bring freedom to peoples who have been enslaved."

President Roosevelt presumably heard the news in his White House bedroom . He retired early after broadcasting a radio address in which he rejoiced over the liberation of Rome and asserted the Allied armies now have "one up and two to go" in capturing enemy capitals.

The President made one striking comment on the capture of Rome. It was this:

"Our victory comes at an excellent time, while our Allied forces are poised for another strike at western Europe."

INVASION HAD STARTED

Even as he spoke, the Allied navies were striking out across the English channel to land the invasion armies on the northern coast of France.

While the White House proper was dark when Gen. Eisenhower announced the invasion was under way—at 3:32 a. m. EWT—the executive offices were ablaze with lights. However, three reporters found only White House policemen and secret service men on duty.

The War and Navy Departments, along with the Office of War Information, were lighted and doing business as usual when the official announcement came. The OWI on hearing German broadcasts of the invasion, issued an emergency order, calling out hundreds of special employes to handle the transmission of stories from war correspondents to their home offices in the news syndicates, newspapers and radio chains.

The city was quiet at 3:32 a. m. A few "nights owls" stood on street corners reading late editions of morning newspapers, which recounted the German broadcasts that the invasion was under way. There was no public excitement.

PERSHING STATEMENT

The overwhelming sentiment in official circles, however, was expressed by Gen. Pershing, who wrote out his statement from his present quarters in Walter Reed Hospital.

The general said:

"Today, the sons of American soldiers of 1917-18 are engaged in a like war of liberation. It is their task to bring freedom to peoples who have been enslaved. I have every confidence that they, together with their gallant brothers in arms, will win through to victory."

Pershing predicted "as the overmastering military might of the Allies advances it will be joined by the men of the occupied countries, whose land has been overrun by the enemy, but whose spirit remains unconquered."

First newsmen to reach the war department in the Pentagon building after the German broadcasts, found Maj.-Gen. Alexander D. Surles, chief of the Army's Bureau of Public Relations, on duty with his staff. At first Surles declined to confirm or deny Nazi broadcasts.

Later, Surles visited Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, on the third floor of the Pentagon.

About 3:25 a. m., Surles, emerged from his own office and told waiting newsmen:

"The announcement is coming at 3:32 a. m."

The Allied announcement followed.

Berlin Broadcasts Show West Wall Caught Napping

LONDON, June 6 (AP)—German propagandists asserted today that despite the invasion of western Europe life continued normally in Berlin with "no excitement, no extra editions, no special radio announcements."

But a part of these assertions obviously were false. From the time of the first landings a constant stream of broadcasts came from the German transmitters—many of them carrying more than an indication Hitler's defenses along the western coast had been caught napping.

The German press chief was quoted by DNB as saying the Allies opened the invasion "on the order of Coscow."

The German home radio gave word of the Allied landings to the German people at about this time.

"The enemy dropped man-sized uniformed dummies which contained explosives and which went off when they touched," a Berlin broadcast said.

This same report claimed the first prisoners captured were American parachute troops taken in the Cherbourg area and British parachutists seized in the Caen sector.

'They're Off' Brings Red Glee

MOSCOW, June 6 (AP)—Russians who learned of the invasion today literally danced with glee.

For them it meant the end of three years of anxious waiting for the thrust from the west.

Newspapers which had not announced the landings still were carrying glowing accounts of the fall of Rome.

Peter Smollett, head of the Russian department of the British Ministry of Information, walked into the press department of the foreign commissarait at 12:30 p. m., holding up his thumb, and announced:

"They're off." Then he went to notify Soviet officials.

Maj.-Gen. John R. Deane, chief of the U. S. military mission, and Lieut.-Gen. Brocas Burrows, British military mission head, prepared a joint statement for the Soviet press.

De Gaulle in England

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP) — Gen. Charles De Gaulle has arrived in England, it was announced today in a broadcast from Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force. NBC monitored the broadcast.

Normandie Forms Ideal Spot for Allied Beachhead

By JAMES M. LONG

LONDON, June 6 (AP)—Normandy, jutting out along the English channel opposite British invasion bases, forms a natural peninsula pathway into France, and from the first Allied commanders have recognized it as one of their best bets for beachheads.

The gun-bristling coastline, rock shoals and in some places bad tide made initial landings hazardous, but once a foothold is established the Allies can attack along either side of the peninsula, protected on the flank by the sea.

The Cherbourg peninsula—old Normandy—thrusts out to the Cape de la Hague and Cape de Barfleur 88 miles from the Isle of Wight.

The peninsula is 70 miles long and ranges from 25 to 65 miles wide, with the port of Cherbourg at the tip as a keypoint of coastal defense. Cherbourg is 75 miles from Bournemouth, England.

Penetrations inland would clear all of Normandy, with its good air field sites, and provide a pathway down the Seine valley to Paris.

Le Havre, 100 air-line miles northwest of Paris on the Seine river estuary, is France's second seaport and has 14 ship basins and eight miles of docks.

One of France's main trans-Atlantic terminals for the peacetime trade with New York and other ports, the city itself lies mostly on a level strip of ground except on the north where a great bluff overlooks the entrance to the Seine estuary. Before the war it was France's eleventh city with population of 165,000.

During the World War Britain and the United States used it as a base and point for landing tropps and stores.

'Thank Goodness It's On!' London's Invasion Reaction

By BARBARA WACE

LONDON, June 6 (AP)—A buxom barmaid's exclamation—"Thank goodness, now we're beginning to get it over with"—typified the reaction of Londoners today to the news that the invasion of Europe had begun.

Although the BBC report of the German announcement that the long-awaited activity had begun was taken skeptically by those who heard it, once the news was confirmed by Allied headquarters, Londoners took it quietly.

By 11 a. m. queues formed in front of newsstands for the first editons of evening newspapers which were sold out immediately.

The news brought back to London some of the comradeship and friendliness which was expressed on all sides when the British capital was undergoing the blitz.

One anxious wife, with a husband in the fire service on the southeast coast and a son on the invasion craft, said:

"I almost wish they'd bomb us too in London. It would make me feel better."

LeHavre

On this beach, just north of the major port city of Le Havre, Allied forces are reported to have stormed ashore in the opening operation of the most gigantic military offensive in history. In the right background is the breakwater and docks which have been pounded by pre-invasion raiders.

Let's Go

The first picture of the invasion show American halftracs and other armored vehicles being loaded aboard LCT's at a British port before heading out across the channel. In the center LCT the vehicle being guided up the gangway
